CHOOSING SUCCESS INSTRUCTOR MANUAL CHAPTER 2: INTERACTING WITH YOUR COLLEGE COMMUNITY

The key to assimilation for students—and retention for the college—occurs when students feel like they've become a part of the campus. Although the college makes the first move in providing services and resources for students, the students must make the next move by making use of those services and resources. This chapter provides you the opportunity to highlight the specific resources and people on your campus that students need to know. It also provides opportunities for students to learn more ways to interact with campus resources and people effectively.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

In this chapter students will learn:

- how to use their college catalog and website
- how to access resources and services on campus
- who is who in their college community
- how to identify which organizations at the college fit their needs
- how to communicate effectively with your faculty
- how to communicate more effectively with others and resolve conflicts when they occur

VIDEO(S)

“Clown” (diversity training) Time 21 minutes
preview www.youtube.com/watch?v=PXfwUMAzpts
Focus: Addresses key diversity issues without offense. Your college library or HR department might also have or be able to purchase a copy.

TEACHING SUGGESTIONS BY MODULE “A

Class Divided” Time 56 minutes

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=D0qKDiq1fNw> Focus: Iowa schoolteacher who, the day after Martin Luther King Jr. was murdered in 1968, gave her third-grade students a first-hand experience in the meaning of discrimination. Discuss the story of what she taught the children and the impact that lesson had on their lives. What impact does it have on students in your class?

ANSWERS

Because Choosing Success teaches students to make wise decisions, answers to exercises vary. Use Socratic Questioning (separate folder) for assistance.

- I. Understanding the language of your school: catalog and website content.
 - If possible, complete Activity 1 in a campus computer lab. If a computer lab is not available, you can display online website content in class for discussion and provide students with copies of your college's catalog to complete Part 2 of the Activity. Ask students to provide their answers to the group application. List these on the board and define as a class.
- II. Campus offices, resources, and services
 - Activity 2 helps students identify more generic resources on your college campus. Use Passport Activity. Ask students to identify what other places they have found useful. Next, ask what these offices do and where they are located.
- III. Experiencing campus diversity
 - Use Activity 3 as a community building activity. Activity 3 has 3 parts. Ask students to identify one person from each group to discuss the most interesting story they heard. Follow-up with one of the following:
 - a. Video: A Class Divided
 - b. Video: Clown
 - c. In the Cards Activity
- IV. Getting involved: joining campus groups
 - Before completing Activity 4, ask someone from the student services staff or from the student government association to come talk to students about specific organizations and opportunities on your campus. Debrief using the Group Application.
- V. Working with faculty
 - Role play interaction with faculty and staff.
- VI. Conflict resolution
 - Role play interactions that involve conflict.

ACTIVITIES

Icebreaker Before watching the video “Diversity”, ask each person to complete the following phrase in writing: on this campus, diversity is... Collect and share anonymous responses with the class. After watching the video, repeat the activity with the following prompt: Based on what I saw in the video, my ideas about diversity on this campus are...

Campus Jeopardy Create a list of topics (e.g., Catalog, Organizations, Campus Resources, Campus Offices, Campus Services) with 4-5 “answers” for each (e.g., name of organization for students interested in health careers; Building that houses the learning center; Where to go for math assistance). Students can form teams and play for points.

In the Cards Materials: deck of playing cards. Prior to class pull out as many cards as you have students in a class. About 1/3 of the cards should be an A, K or Q. About 1/3 should be 2, 3 or 4. About 1/3 should be 8, 9 or 10. Place the cards you withdrew on a desk in the classroom. Put a small piece of double stick tape on the back of each card. Stick one card on each student’s forehead (yes, everyone will look silly together). Do NOT allow the student who is wearing a card see what it is. Tell students that “high cards” represent people you want to “be with”. When they see someone with a high card, they should do or say anything (e.g., I like what you are wearing. Want to study together? Etc) to try to be with that person. If a person has a “low card,” the student should avoid that person, pay no attention, ignore them, and walk off and so on. If a person has a “middle card,” they are people that you don’t necessarily want to be with or want to avoid. Do not verbally identify an Ace as a high or low card. Let students make that decision for themselves. Allow students to “interact” for several minutes. Stop the students and debrief. Ask students if they “knew” what kind of card they were. For some students, this represents their only opportunity to “be” the person everyone wants to “be” with or the person everyone ignores.

Passport Activity Create a “passport” activity where students get their passports “stamped” at each location they visit. Be sure to let someone in each location you use know that students may be coming by for information. This can be an opportunity for them to highlight and “sell” students their services.

5C Application Ask students to think of a specific example of a conflict situation. Divide class into small groups. Each group should choose one of the situations to role play. Suggest that they use the 5C approach to determine two other another communication choices they could have made as well as the consequences of those choices. Role play each approach and consequence. Which is the best choice? How would a person check the outcome of that choice?

Billy Joel DVD Activity: We Didn’t Start the Fire What exists in our world, state, community, campus that divides us? Why? Although this activity is designed to illuminate concepts involved with the Cold War. But, you can use this activity and song to introduce our role in starting... and ending conflicts of all kind. Play Billy Joel’s “We Didn’t Start the Fire” (<http://www.azlyrics.com/lyrics/billyjoel/wedidntstartthefire.html>) and provide students with the lyrics (below). Ask students to create a list of concepts that relate to a type of conflict in their experience.

Classroom Assessment Technique As a class ending, ask students briefly respond to one or more of the following writing prompts: I was surprised to learn...; As the result of this chapter/class content, I plan to...; I learned...

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS*

Additional Discussion Questions* are available on PowerPoints.

1. College orientation programs provide information about campus resources and services. If you were in charge of orientation, what would you want new students to know about your campus? Why?
2. Imagine you are designing an advertising campaign to market your college catalog. What features of the catalog would you use to market it?
3. What surprises you about diversity on your campus? Why?
4. Why don't more students join campus organizations? What could a campus organization do to attract you to join?
5. How would you describe interactions you've had with faculty on your campus? What could you do to improve them?
6. Some people seem to like conflict and others avoid it. What do you do in situations that involve conflict? Why?
7. What college places or terms (writing center, Dean's office, AA degree, etc.) were unfamiliar to you at this college? How did that make you feel? What might be the consequences of not knowing what the place or term is?

How are the people (students, faculty, staff) on campus similar to or different from the people (students, teachers, administrators) at your high school or the individuals you've worked with at a job?

What are your thoughts and feelings about that?

Diversity

Characterizes today's typical college campus

Discrimination

Be aware of such thoughts and feelings

Recognize stereotypical characteristics rather than individual ones

Choose to have an open mind

Joining Campus Groups

Establish other campus interests

Participate in an extracurricular or community group

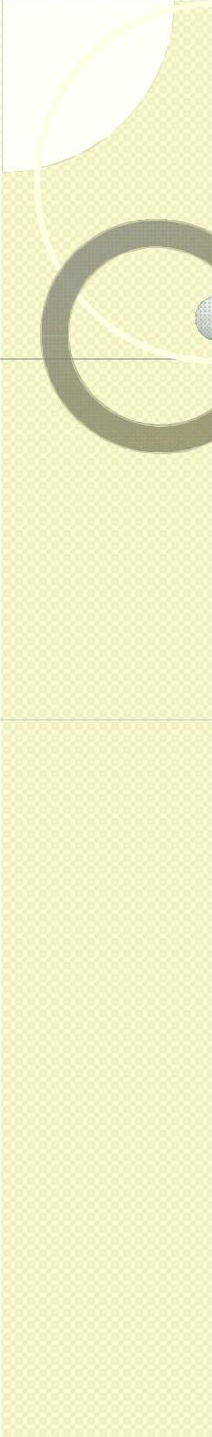

Job recruiters like well-rounded students

Evaluate your needs, values, and interests to determine which groups to join

Why should you join a campus organization?
What might be holding you back from doing so?
Which ones are you aware of?
How can you learn more about other groups
at your school?

Think About It!

Do you know the names of your instructors and professors?

How would you describe your interactions and impressions thus far?

What do you think their impressions are of you and the other students in your class?

Why do you think that?

What kind of impression do you want to have?

Working with Faculty

Classroom Behavior

Be polite and respectful

Hand in quality work

Be aware of your body language

Accept constructive criticism

Be prepared to ask respectful and relevant questions

Working with Faculty

Out-of-Class Behavior

Say hello when you see an instructor outside of class.

Don't overload your instructor's e-mail box.

Address your instructor outside of class in the same manner as you would in class.

Pay attention to the instructor's available office hours.

Treat them as you would want to be treated.

Working with Faculty

Online Behavior

Faculty expect you to use correct spelling and grammar in your e-mails and other class work.

Check into the class regularly.

Be committed to group work to maintain a positive image with classmates and the instructor.

Tips for Getting Along with Your Instructor

Never miss class.

Never be inattentive or impolite.

Use standard written and spoken English in communicating with your instructor.

Never, ever, say or e-mail, "I missed class today. Did we do anything important?" (Instructors never feel that they are teaching unimportant information.)

Communication and Conflict Resolution

Communication Skills

Verbal

Nonverbal

Be aware of your communication strengths and weaknesses

Communication skills can be improved!

Benefit all kinds of relationships – personal, academic, and career

Developing Effective Communication Skills

Think before speaking or writing

Listen actively

Ask questions

Use I rather than You

Observe and learn from communication interactions between other people

Take a speech course

Think About It!

How do you define conflict?

Do you enjoy conflict? Why or why not?

What kinds of conflict have you experienced?

How do you resolve conflicts?

How successful are you at doing so?

Conflict Occurs When. . .

O

People don't accept responsibility and make excuses

Someone is always complaining and never compliments

A retort is made for every charge

A person is stubborn, uncompromising, belligerent, and/or rude

Conflict Resolution Strategies

Give the person with whom you have conflict
the gift of agreement

Compromise

Recognize the differences between you and the other person as positives rather than negatives

Techniques for Resolving Conflicts

1. Can we talk?
2. Practice, practice, practice
3. Choose your battles
4. Fault lines
5. Open communication
6. Give and take
7. Avoid airing your dirty laundry
8. Winners never quit
9. Stick like glue
10. Leave the scene
11. If at first...

5C Application

Choose one problem or concern related to the content of this chapter. Describe how you would use the 5C approach to make a decision about it. What new insights have you gained about applying the 5Cs to a problem or concern?

CHAPTER TWO

Reflections

I liked. . .

I was surprised to learn. . . .

The content of this chapter got me thinking about. . . .
