D. a company's plans for improving value-creating internal processes.
E. a strategic vision, a strategy, and a business model.

7. The strategy-making, strategy-executing process

A. is usually delegated to members of a company's board of directors so as not to infringe on the time of busy executives.
B. includes establishing a company's mission, developing a business model aimed at making the company an industry leader, and crafting a strategy to implement and execute the business model.
C. embraces the tasks of developing a strategic vision, setting objectives, crafting a strategy, implementing and executing the strategy, and then monitoring developments and initiating corrective adjustments in light of experience, changing conditions, and new opportunities.
D. is principally concerned with sizing up an organization's internal and external situation, so as to be prepared for the challenge of developing a sound business model.
E. is primarily the responsibility of top executives and the board of directors; very few managers below this level are involved.

8. A company's strategic vision concerns

A. a company's directional path and future product-customer-market-technology focus.
B. why the company does certain things in trying to please its customers.
C. management's story line of how it intends to make a profit with the chosen strategy.
D. "who we are and what we do."
E. what future actions the enterprise will likely undertake to outmaneuver rivals and achieve a sustainable competitive advantage.

9. Management's strategic vision for an organization

A. charts a strategic course for the organization ("where we are going") and outlines the company's future product-customer-market-technology focus.
B. describes in fairly specific terms the organization's business model, strategic objectives, and strategy.
C. spells out how the company will become a big moneymaker and boost shareholder value.
D. addresses the critical issue of "why our business model needs to change and how we plan to change it."
E. spells out the organization's strategic moves that will be undertaken to achieve competitive advantage.

11. Which one of the following is not an accurate attribute of an organization's strategic vision?

A. A clearly articulated view of "where we are going"
B. Describing the company's future product-customer-market-technology focus
C. Pointing an organization in a particular direction and charting a strategic path for it to follow
D. Providing managers with a reference point for making strategic decisions
E. Outlining how the company intends to implement and execute its business model

12. Well-conceived visions are

A. distinctive.

B. specific to a particular organization.

C. free of generic, feel-good statements.

D. not innocuous one-sentence statements.

E. All of these.

13. Which of the following are characteristics of an effectively worded strategic vision statement?

A. Graphic, directional, and focused

B. Challenging, competitive, and "set in concrete"

C. Balanced, responsible, and rational

D. Realistic, customer-focused, and market-driven

E. Achievable, profitable, and ethical

14. Which one of the following is not a characteristic of an effectively worded strategic vision statement?

A. Directional (is forward-looking, describes the strategic course that management has charted and the kinds of product-market-customer-technology changes that will help the company prepare for the future)

B. Easy to communicate (is explainable in 10 to 15 minutes, can be reduced to a memorable slogan)

C. Graphic (paints a picture of the kind of company management is trying to create and the market position or positions the company is striving to stake out)

D. Consensus-driven (commits the company to a "mainstream" directional path that most all stakeholders will enthusiastically support)

E. Focused (is specific enough to provide guidance to managers in making decisions and allocating resources)

15. Which of the following is not a common shortcoming of company vision statements?

A. Vague or incomplete—short on specifics
B. Focused and narrow—exclusive to a specific direction
C. Bland or uninspiring
D. Not distinctive—could apply to most any company (or at least several others in the same industry)
E. Too reliant on superlatives (best, most successful, recognized leader, global or worldwide leader, first choice of customers)

16. Which of the following are common shortcomings of company vision statements?

A. Too broad, vague or incomplete, bland/uninspiring, not distinctive, and too reliant on superlatives
B. Unrealistic, unconventional, and unbusinesslike
C. Too specific, too inflexible, and can't be achieved in five years
D. Too broad, too narrow, and too risky
E. Not customer-driven, out-of-step with emerging technological trends, and too ambitious

17. Effectively communicating the strategic vision down the line to lower-level managers and employees has the value of

A. not only explaining "where we are going and why" but, more importantly, also inspiring and energizing company personnel to unite to get the company moving in the intended direction.
B. helping company personnel understand why "making a profit" is so important.
C. making it easier for top executives to set strategic objectives.
D. helping lower-level managers and employees better understand the company's business model.
E. All of these.

18. The benefit of a vivid, engaging, and convincing strategic vision is

A. its ability to crystallize top management's own view about the company's long-term direction.

B. it reduces the risk of rudderless decision making by managers at all levels of the organization.

C. it helps an organization prepare for the future.

D. its ability to unite company personnel behind managerial efforts to get the company moving in the intended direction.

E. All of these are important benefits of an effective strategic vision.

19. A company's mission statement typically addresses which of the following questions?

A. Who we are? what we do? and why we are here?

B. What objectives and level of performance do we want to achieve?

C. Where are we going and what should our strategy be?

D. What approach should we take to achieve sustainable competitive advantage?

E. What business model should we employ to achieve our objectives and our vision?

20. A company's mission statement should be sufficiently descriptive and include which of the following?

A. Identify the company's services and products to give the company its own identity

B. Relate to the buyer's needs that the company seeks to satisfy

C. Identify the customer or market that the company intends to serve

D. Specify the approach taken by the company to satisfy its customer's needs

E. All of these

21. The difference between the concept of a company mission statement and the concept of a strategic vision is that

A. a mission statement typically concerns a company's present business scope ("who we are and what we do") whereas the principal concern of a strategic vision is with the company's future business scope (long term direction and future product-customer-market-technology focus).
B. the mission is to make a profit, whereas a strategic vision concerns how to attract customers.
C. a mission statement deals with what to accomplish on behalf of shareholders and a strategic vision concerns what to accomplish on behalf of customers.
D. a mission concerns what to do to achieve short-run objectives and a strategic vision concerns what to do to achieve long-run performance targets.
E. a mission statement deals with "where we are headed" whereas a strategic vision provides the critical answer to "how will we get there."

22. A company's values concern

A. whether and to what extent it intends to operate in an ethical and socially responsible manner.
B. how aggressively it will seek to maximize profits and enforce high ethical standards.
C. the beliefs and operating principles built into the company's "balanced scorecard" for measuring performance.
D. the beliefs, traits, and behavioral norms that company personnel are expected to display in conducting the company's business and pursuing its strategic vision and mission.
E. the beliefs, principles, and ethical standards that are incorporated into the company's strategic intent and business model.

23. A company's values relate to such things as

A. how it will balance its pursuit of financial objectives against the pursuit of its strategic objectives.
B. how it will balance the pursuit of its business purpose/mission against the pursuit of its strategic vision.
C. fair treatment, integrity, ethical behavior, innovativeness, teamwork, top-notch quality, superior customer service, social responsibility, and community citizenship.
D. whether it will emphasize stock price appreciation or higher dividend payments to shareholders, and whether it will put more emphasis on the achievement of short-term performance targets or long-range performance targets.
E. All of these

24. The managerial purpose of setting objectives includes

A. converting the strategic vision into specific performance targets.
B. using the objectives as yardsticks for tracking the company's progress and performance.
C. challenging the organization to perform at its full potential and deliver the best possible results.
D. establishing deadlines for achieving performance results.
E. All of these.

25. A company needs financial objectives

A. to overtake key competitors on such important measures as net profit margins and return on investment.
B. because without adequate profitability and financial strength, the company's ultimate survival is jeopardized.
C. to indicate to employees that financial objectives always take precedence over strategic objectives.
D. to convince shareholders that top management is acting in their interests.
E. to translate the company's business model into action items.

26. Strategic objectives

A. are more essential in achieving a company's strategic vision than are financial objectives.
B. are generally less important than financial objectives.

D. prevents the drive for achieving strategic objectives from overwhelming the pursuit of financial objectives.
E. entails creating a set of financial objectives balanced among profitability measures and liquidity measures.

28. A balanced scorecard that includes both strategic and financial performance targets is a conceptually strong approach for judging a company's overall performance because

A. financial performance measures are lagging indicators that reflect the results of past decisions and organizational activities whereas strategic performance measures are leading indicators of a company's future financial performance.
B. it entails putting equal emphasis on good strategy execution and good business model execution.
C. a balanced scorecard approach pushes managers to avoid setting objectives that reflect the results of past decisions and organizational activities and, instead, to set objectives that will serve as leading indicators of a company's future financial performance.
D. it assists managers in putting roughly equal emphasis on short-term and long-term performance targets.
E. it more or less forces managers to put equal emphasis on financial and strategic objectives.

29. Why should long-run objectives take precedence over short-run objectives?

A. Focus is placed on improving performance in the near term.
B. Long-run objectives are necessary for achieving long-term performance and stand as a barrier to undue focus on short-term results.
C. This will satisfy shareholder expectations for progress.
D. This will force the company to deliver performance improvement in the current period.
E. None of these.

30. Company objectives

A. are needed only on a companywide basis related to a company's short-term and long-term profitability.
B. need to be broken down into performance targets for each of its separate businesses, product lines, functional departments, and individual work units.
C. play the important role of establishing the direction in which it needs to be headed.
D. are important because they help guide managers in deciding what the company's strategy map should look like.
